"Canada West" An Interesting Book

The News has just received a copy of a new "Canada West" booklet from the Publicity Branch of the Department of Immigration and Colonization, Ottawa. The booklet gives an accurate description of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, particularly with respect to opportunities for farmers. There are many illustrations and double-page maps in four colours of each of the Provinces and of the Dominion.

The "Canada West" booklet has been prepared especially for circulation amongst persons in the Old Country who would be interested in becoming farmers in Western Canada. Any reader of this paper may have copies of "Canada West" sent to his friends in the Old Country who are contemplating coming to Canada, by sending their names and addresses to the Director of Publicity, Department of Immigration and Colonization, Ottawa. No charge is made, either for the booklet or for postage on it.

Better Stock for Our School Fair

I noticed with pleasure the comments by the Editor on the School Fair for Monitor. Having had the opportunity of comparing this district with others, I am particularly anxious that all parents, teachers and School Board members and assist the children to get some Pure-bred Calves and Pigs under the Banners Associations offer to assist the children in purchasing such pure-bred stock.

Better stock is best produced by starting at the bottom and building up.

Let us all work together to make the Monitor School Fair the big event of the year—you will never regret the effort, as the results show strongly in a very short time. We need better gardens, alfalfa, sweet clover, bromo grass, chickens, piggies, turkeys, cattle sheep and big horses. Help the children to produce them.

Consult the banker and let Monitor District have the biggest and best Calf and Pig Clubs in Alberta.

Oil Rag Annual Seems Rather Indefinite

Owing to the fact that the Editor (?) of the Guiding Star Yearly (Oil Rag) has been ill, he begs to apologise for the non-publication of this Annual publication which is now past due.

He wishes to inform the public (or whom it may concern) that the said edition may be published sometime in the future.

Local Happenings

Taking things as they come does not wear one out so fast as dodging them.

W. H. Olson paid a business trip to Kirriemuir last week.

W. R. Forbes, of Kirriemuir, was a visitor in town last week end.

Rev. W. S. Wickenden returned from Saskatoon on the Saturday afternoon train.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. H. Grayburn, on Friday February 18th, at Consort a Daughter.

The representative of the R. G. Dunn Company was a visitor for the usual business, on Friday and Saturday of last week.

The Rev. H. Boyd, of Consort was a visitor in town over the weekend. He exchanged pulpits on Sunday with the Rev. Davidge.

The representative of the Edmonton Journal was in town the latter end of last week, soliciting subscriptions to that daily.

The past week has brought us the coldest weather experienced this winter the mercury dropping, on one occasion, as low as 42° below at 3.30 a.m. Fortunately, there was no wind so that the cold was not so keenly felt.

The Compeer Baseball Club are arranging for a Concert, Box-Social and Dance on the 17th of next month. The proceeds are for the purpose of purchasing uniforms, etc., for the ball team. Tickets have been printed and a good turnout of the citizens is expected.

G. H. Lucas, Esqre returned home on Saturday last after being under the doctors care for a considerable time, suffering with appendicitis. George has now had the offending part of his anatomy removed, and although, looking a little under the weather, says he is feeling much better.

Judging from experience this past week, the hours of some of our business houses seem to be from 11.55 a.m. to 12 noon.

For the first time in the history of the Monitor Citizens Band, not a single couple appeared on the floor to dance a three-step on the last dance held in the Hall here. It is indeed a regrettable fact that the daintiest and most graceful dances are being forsaken for the harum-scarum system of "popular" dancing.

We had a letter from L. E. Wise (Red) this week. Red has unfortunately been under the weather to such an extent, that he had to spend a lot of time lately in hospital and undergo an operation. Judging from the tone of his letter he is well on the road to recovery. Red, who was at one time on the staff of the local Bank of Commerce, wishes to be remembered to his friends in Monitor and district.

What Some Cows Have Been Doing

Local Happenings

A Holstein cow recently eclipsed all Canadian records for yield of milk and percentage of butter fat, according to Report No. 12 issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. This report gives the records of performance of all pure bred dairy cattle from April 1 1919, to March 31, 1920. Also the standards of every breed, and a list of bulls qualified for registration. The names of the cows are given, and also those of the sire and dam, the owner, the breeder, age at test, date of calving, production required, total production, percentage of fat, the number of days milked, and, in the majority of cases the number of times milked per day. The last mentioned matter having lately been a subject of experiment at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and Macdonald College, Que., it is interesting to note that many of the Ayrshires were milked three times a day and some of the Holsteins four times. Of the Ayrshires greatest yield for the year is credited to a mature cow owned by the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, Truro, and the best percentage of butter fat to a cow owned in Prince Edward Island. Of the Holsteins, the record yield for the year is credited to a matron owned by the Colony Farm, British Columbia and the best percentage of butter fat to another British Columbian. Of the Jerseys, the first in point of yield is an animal owned at Edgefield, Ontario, while the best percentage of fat is attributed to a three-year-old owned in British Columbia. A four-year-old Shorthorn owned at Buckingham, Que., claims the record for that breed in quantity of milk, and a two year-old owned at Waterford, Ont., the highest fat content.

If you run short of typewriter supplies, remember it isn't necessary to send away for them. We have a stock of ribbons, carbons, second sheets and good typewriting paper on hand at the News Office.

A lecture was given in the Big Hall on Saturday evening last, but owing to the fact that the same was not advertised, not many people took advantage to be present. We understand the topic under discussion was "Banking" and the lecturer went away back into Parliamentary law to prove that banking was a funny sort of business. It may be, and all that, but we feel safer with our 15cents in the bank here than in our pocket.

The Farmers' Conventions

With the holding of the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association at Moose Jaw during the first week of February, this year's great gatherings of the organized farmers of the three Prairie Provinces were concluded. These annual meetings, attended by thousands of representative farmers from every nook and corner of the three Provinces, not only command the interest of every man and woman engaged in agriculture, but their deliberations are followed with the closest attention by Governments, financiers, transportation interests, manufacturers, and business men generally, as well as by all organizations interested in social and moral reforms.

To the casual onlooker one of these big gatherings—so big that it is next to impossible to secure auditoriums large enough to accommodate the delegates, not to mention visitors—they are too big to permit of that careful consideration and intelligent grasp of the important questions which come up for decision and action. At times the conventions appear to become unwieldy, almost unmanageable, and somewhat confused as to the issue before them because of a multiplicity of motions, amendments and amendments to the amendment. No doubt a delegated convention restricted to two or three hundred men and women, selected from districts, could transact business more expeditiously.

But smaller conventions would result in loss of some of the most apparent and undoubted advantages of these big gatherings. The big convention is a veritable dynamo for the development of enthusiasm in behalf of those particular reforms to the accomplishment of which the organized farmers have set their hands. These large gatherings provide ample opportunity for hundreds of men and women to attend who otherwise would never receive the inspiration inseparable from such a gathering together of people engaged in a common task and confronted with common problems. As a result, each succeeding convention sees many new faces in the audience, and the influence of the farmers' movement is thus more widely spread over this agricultural land.

It might be feared that such manifestations of abounding enthusiasm would lead to ill-advised, hasty action. The opposite appears to be true in most instances. Year after year resolutions from individual locals calling for radical and even drastic action are considered by the conventions, but when facts are given and new light thrown on the subject of which the Local was not aware, the big convention invariably rejects the resolution, fully or adopts it in a very much modified form. The ultra-radicals are respectfully listened to, their point of view considered, and then the good judgment and sane common sense of the vast majority render a decision. These annual conventions, therefore, have a steady influence. They clear the atmosphere of much fog which gathers in local spots throughout the year. This, indeed, is one of the most valuable features of these big annual get-together meetings.

And the big conventions are fair and open-minded. "Equity" is the motto of the organized farmers of the West. Emphasis is laid upon it at every convention. And the delegates strive earnestly to live up to it. Anything unfair or underhand is immediately scorned by these big gatherings. Personalities are strictly out of order. The organized farmers are demanding justice for themselves in the carrying on of the primary and basic industry of the Dominion, they recognize the right of everybody else to just treatment, too. They are not asking for special privileges for themselves, and feel there is no injustice in fighting against the continuance of such privileges now enjoyed by others. Complete equity all round is their motto and also their fighting ground.

The conventions in all three Provinces this year had two outstanding questions before them—the much talked of "wheat pool" and the proposal that the farmers' organizations as such should enter the Provincial political arena in their several Provinces. The idea of a "wheat pool" was enthusiastically endorsed, because the wheat growers have become firmly convinced that the methods which have so long prevailed under which their chief product becomes the plaything of market speculators must cease. They have too much at stake to allow such methods to continue indefinitely. Two avenues of reform seem to present themselves—one, action by the Federal Government; two, co-operative action by the farmers themselves. Failing the first, the farmers are determined to evolve some plan whereby the second may be brought into practical operation. But no hasty, ill-advised steps were taken. There was general appreciation of the magnitude of the task before them—the biggest ever attempted by organized farmers. The huge financial and transportation problems involved were fully and frankly recognized, but there was a grim determination in evidence to find a solution to these, and the Executives were authorized to proceed diligently with the work of finding the solution. It was also made clear that in this task the farmers would have the active sympathy and support of the Western Provincial Governments.

As to the advisability of entering Provincial politics, opinions differed. In some Provinces the majority view favored such action; in others the majority opinion was that such action was not necessary, that the time was not ripe for it, and that to force it would be ill-advised and a mistake. But so far as Federal politics are concerned, there was absolutely unanimity—the farmers are going to fight as a body in the next Dominion election.

Quartette Is Good

A small but highly appreciative audience listened to the Toronto Ladie's Quartette in the Big Hall last Tuesday evening. The programme throughout was one of the best we have ever heard.

It is impossible to say that any one of the four Artistes were better than the other—each excelled in her line, and the result was par excellence.

Just why only four of the audience stood for "O Canada" at the close of the concert we do not understand, unless they were caught by surprise by the unexpected rendition of the anthem.

No Insurance Was Carried

Last week one of our citizens was around collecting for an unfortunate person who had suffered bad burns, contracted when their dwelling caught fire from an explosion of gasoline. The same sad story—"No Insurance was carried" can be tacked on the end of a sad chapter of their lives. The person will undoubtedly lose a lot of time and wages, will have a nice doctors bill to pay into the bargain—all of which could have been avoided if they had had a forethought to take an Accident Policy. For a small sum paid annually, the Norwich Union Accident and Sick Benefit Policy will guarantee your doctors bills, and pay your wages while ill at the same time. Think it over.

MR. ROY CRAMER asked us to put his name in the paper this week. Sure, we'll try anything once.

Power of the Tides.
We are accustomed to look upon the tides as representing enormous unmeasured power. We could only use them for work, though, because all the machinery in the world. But is this true?

Undoubtedly—if we could put them to work on a scale sufficiently great. But that this will ever be practicable, economically, is declared doubtful.

Engineers who have made a study of the subject say that one acre of water rising and falling ten feet would yield only four horsepower, taking into view cost of plant, that's about all.

They say that tidal power would be worth developing only in certain localities—perhaps in the Bay of Fundy, where tides rise and fall seventy feet; in Cook's Inlet, fifty feet; at Eastport, Me., eighteen feet. At these places are too far away from industrial centres.

More Pay for Song Writers.

The value of words is going up, at least in Russia. There the courts have decided that the authorship of the lyrics and music of a poem are equal. At present in Canada the writer of the words of a song gets only a pittance of the royalties or a small sum outright at the start. In England, many of the most popular ballads have brought their writers more than two or three guineas, while the composer goes on cashing his royalty checks for years.

The generation of electrical energy by means of water power is a rapidly expanding industry in Venice. The difficulties experienced in this as a result of war in obtaining sufficient supplies of coal has emphasized the necessity for a maximum utilization of hydraulic resources. Steps are now being taken to extend the use of electricity in agriculture, drainage, irrigation, traction and canal excavation.

Prince Coming Again.

It is definitely announced that the Prince of Wales will leave for Australia on March 15. He will not go to India this year, but will return from Australia by way of Canada to visit his ranch in Alberta.

Arsenic to United States.

Canada retained its position in 1919 as the most important producer of arsenic for the United States market. Lower prices retarded American production during the year.

The United States production of arsenic in 1919 according to estimates compiled by James A. Hill, of the U. S. Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, was 5,500 short tons, as compared with 6,400 short tons in 1918. The imports of arsenic for the first nine months of 1919, as reported by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, were 1,329 short tons. The imports for the year will probably amount to about 1,550 short tons. Most of the imported arsenic went from Canada and Mexico, though some came from Bulgaria and Spain. The quantity of arsenic available for export in 1919 was about 1,450 short tons, as compared with 2,710 short tons in 1918. There were no exports either of foreign or domestic arsenics during the first nine months of 1919. Two American companies, who produced considerable arsenic in 1918, reported to the Geological Survey that they produced none in 1919 on account of low prices.

ALTARIO

Too late for last week.

The Altario Choir presented the musical Playlet "That New Bonnet" to a crowded house at Wheatsheaf School on Friday. So popular was the piece that many who had seen it in Altario paid a second visit to enjoy the comicalities of Dephe Cayenne. Sleighdogs arrived also from Compeer and Kirriemuir and one and all pronounced the show a grand success. Over $50 was realised and an enjoyable dance followed.

This weeks News

On Friday evening there will be a Red Cross Social preceded by the business of hearing the Delegates report of the Edmonton Convention and other important matters. An oyster supper and dance will follow and it is hoped that all the world and his wife will turn out.

A large gathering of relatives and friends celebrated the 23rd. birthday of Mrs. G. Weller at the Hotel on Tuesday. "Freda" is one of the most popular girls for miles around as was evidenced by the fact that Kirrie folks came along in goodly strength to celebrate. "500" was the order of the night while many guessing games caused much merriment. On the occasion of cutting the handsome birthday cake alight with 23 candles N. D. Robinson made an appropriate speech expressing the good feeling of the company and emphasizing the esteem in which Mrs. Weller was held in town and country. Dauntless was served at which Mrs. D. W. McLeod assisted her sister.

A Dog---!

An interesting debate took place on Monday evening last before an assembly of about twenty-five teen age boys and girls, members of the two Clubs. Kenneth Acre and Tom Wheeler took the affirmative, and Delta Foster and Gladys Grace the negative, on the following resolution—"Resolved that the fear of punishment is a greater incentive to work than the hope of reward." Credit is due to all the debaters, all of whom showed promise. The judges, in awarding their decision in favour of the boys, congratulated the speakers and gave each one a friendly criticism.

Apparently just as dangerous to the life of the community as stray cats, are stray dogs. We were informed last Saturday that a farmer coming into town that day, had his team so badly scared that he had all he could do to retain mastery over the team, and keep his seat in the cutter—he was accompanied by his daughter also. In most villages and towns there is a tax on all dogs kept within the limits, and also a man employed to shoot all strays on sight. Just why this system is not applicable to Monitor we are unable to ascertain but we would advise people who profess the ownership of stray dogs, to see that they do not become too wild, for people will not stand having their teams scared and their lives endangered without "coming back" and the coming back part will be on the dog.

You kin steal a pot-udder's kid, daughter she is, and droppin' the cloth and coverin' her face with her apron, 'how you can't come here and do it. You'd better get off my place."

Paisley patted the girl's hair and picked up his rifle.

"I'm sorry you take it that way, widder," he stammered. "I hate to go, and now I smell that bacon you've been cookin' just naturally have me to go, even though I always said that widder Ross could fry bacon like no other woman this side of the creek——"

"Men! Mary Ann be the only women on this side!" snorted the widow, dropping her apron.

"I mean anywhere in Bushwhackers' Place, marm," bowed Bill. "I always thought them pies you made for Mrs. Pierce's—sugar, and the puddin' for Deuce's, too."

"I suppose there's no hurry for your goin'," sighed Mrs. Ross, "and I'll own I did cook mornin' enough meat this mornin'; for why, I don't know. So if you want to, you kin come in and eat breakfast. But," she added, "you'll sure have to get off my property after you've eat."

The good lady picked up her kettle

The Young Mother

Youth, with its vitality, makes for the young mother's health and happiness. But later, maternal experiences bring a different result. The care of a family, multiplied household duties, and very often the weakness caused by womanly disease, tend to prolong the suffering and to make convalescence a slow and weary process. Many women—perhaps your own neighbors—have had beneficial experience with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which prepares the prospective mother. Send 10 cents to Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package of tablets.

HAMILTON, ONT.—I was advised by a practical nurse to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a few days during pregnancy, and I have had every reason to be grateful for her advice, because it kept me in perfect health and I had practically no suffering. The "Prescription" not only benefits the mother, but I am positive the child is benefited, too. I would not hesitate to recommend this "Prescription" to every expectant mother.—Mrs. O. and whisked into the house. Paisley settled at Mary Ann's table.

"You always have such a way of gettin' round ma," laughed the girl. "Mary Ann, you've got a proper good ma," said Bill earnestly.

As they entered the house young Tom came running up the path.

"Isn't it awful?" he cried. "They think poor old Noah was burnt with the schooner. They found his skiff floatin' near the middle grounds."

CHAPTER XXV.*And the Day After.

It was nearly mid-day when Paisley saw his skiff once more and made to cross to Bushwhacker's Place. It had been bitterly cold within the last couple of hours and the ice upon the surface of the creek was now too thick to break with a paddle. Out across Rond Eau black wisps of duck were rising from the water and fluttering upward like smoke puffs in a broken line into the hanging snow-clouds. Declute was standing on the opposite shore. He spoke as Paisley's boat parted the ice rush.

"They'll all go to day," Bill. "By night that won't be a duck on the bay."

"Been over to Mac's?" asked Paisley. His eyes were on the low-lying bulk of the charred schooner and his shadow brows were puckered in a scowl.

"Just come from there," answered the other. "Seems like old Nick has been loose amongst us las' night, it does."

"Then you've heard?" Bill nodded toward the black patch on the white waves.

"I was seen it first," replied Declute. "I seen her burnin' near mornin'. Man, but it was a wild sight! Red sky above her and red water all about her. After daylight come I gets in my boat and goes over to the hull. Injun Noah's skiff was that floatin' bottom up near the mid-dy ground."

Declute feit for his pipe, lit it, and threw the charred match down with a shudder.

Paisley stepped from the boat and pushed him up the path.

"You told Mac, I suppose?"

"Yep, they knew it, and Gloss she is takin' on some. I guess she thought a lot of poor old Noah."

"I reckon she did," agreed Paisley; "she brought her here night twenty years ago."

They found Big McTavish carrying fodder from the corn-stalk stack into the log-stable. From the chinks of the barn between the logs came the white breath of the oxen, and the chink reflected in the fair coop ran in and out of its open door.

"Bill," said the big man, his blue eyes humid with feeling, "it looks as though poor old Noah went with the schooner."

"It does," nodded Paisley. "Mac, we all know who it was burned to a boat and bad as we knew Hallibut to be, it's awful to think he would sacrifice that old man so's there wouldn't be a witness against him when he tries to prove we did it. It's awfull."

Boy came up, his face worn and his clothes torn. He placed the spade he carried inside the stable door and turned away up the path.

Paisley stepped forward and threw his arm about Boy's shoulders.

"You're shakin'" he said; "you ain't just yourself. You mustn't take on hard like you're doin', Boy. I guess you've had more trouble in your poor dog's body than I'll ever hear cut-throats had among the lot of 'em, but for I done with this life. Boy, don't you take it hard."

He drew the young man toward the house, and half-way across the yard Boy stopped and hurried a look down across the valley.

"Boy," he cried, "I told you I would wait till you come back, and now you're back I'm goin'."

"Boy," said Paisley, "he ain't there."

"Where's he gone?" "He got away last night," said Paisley. "He was hurt bad. I guess old Joe did it. They carried him off, and he won't ever come back here again, Boy."

"Let me go," cried the young man, shaking himself free. "If I don't care where he's gone, Bill, I'll follow him—and——"

He snatched up the rifle leaning against the ash-leach and dashed across toward the creek. Paisley followed more slowly. He came up to Boy was pushing his canoe into the ice-coated creek.

"I'm comin' leavin' to-day, Boy," he said, "look at 'em. They've had a glad time here this season. I guess, take it all round. Look at 'em, Boy—they don't seem to want to go very much, do they?"

Boy glanced up, then he stood erect in the boat and watched the detached flock of frantic, over-flow swerve and pitch, and at last scatter into the greater flocks, fading south. Sweetly and shrilly their strong wings beat the frosty air, the sound of their pinions now rising, now fading, and at last thundering as the great flocks dropped low as though to bid the old marsh feeding-ground a last good-bye.

"They're goin' away, Bill," he remarked absently. "Even the little test that were hatched right here in this mornin' are goin'. Seems odd, don't it? I guess they know it's come winter."

"Seems like they know it," answered Paisley, "and I'm thinkin' they're sorta promisin' this old dead

ma'sh they'll come back when it's spring and nest again. Member the old gray duck's nest me and you found down near the outer-run. Boy? Gosh, I'd never beleev'd an old man duck could take on like that one did. Kept flyin' right in my face, and me thinkin' in the ducklin's, just as he kept comin' in the nest and pointin' their heads sideways like they were sickin' on me to me and enjoyin' seeing me get a whalin'.

By gosh, my face was sore for more'n a week where her wings brushed me. And you—why, you just stood there laughin' at me gettin' the whippin'.

Boy was walking now, his head hanging on his breast, his hands blue with the cold, clasping and unclasping the paddle.

"The little devils," he said softly, "the little devils. I don't suppose there is anything cuter than the little wild things of the ma'sh, Bill. I've been out with Davie, and you know how we can handle 'em. I've seen pale snipe, baby rats, baby mice, and all the little babies of the ma'sh. They're all like them ducklin's. There's none of 'em scared and all of 'em sassy."

Paisley bent and pulled the skiff high up on the bank. He took Boy's arm in his and they went back along the walk together. And as they turned, the skies darkened and the snow began to fall in zigzag sheets that hid the flocks of migrating wild ducks, and the low song of their beating wings grew more muffled and at last died away altogether.

"There's somethin' I want to tell you," said Paisley softly, when at last companions sought the path to the house. "Me and Mary Ann is goin' to be married in the spring. I reckon you'll be glad to know it."

Boy did not lift his eyes from the ground.

"I sort o' knowed all along you and Mary Ann would marry some day," said Bill. "And, Bill, I am glad—glad as I can be to day."

Rebellion Days, 1884-85

By O-GE-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

On reaching home I found the Indian had behaved well, so I had a heart to heart talk with him and advised him strongly to go back to Nut Lake or Touchwood Hills where he came from. I told him that if he went on, his life was not worth a rush (for in the excited state of the settlers they would shoot at anything in the shape of an Indian); if he decided to return I could not give him any ammunition, but I would spare a few rations of flour, tea, sugar and tobacco, also some snaring twine which would see him safely home. His wife joined with me in coaxing him, and finally he promised to start back next morning, which he did—exit Nut Laker.

A short digression may be pardoned here to show (that contrary to Yankee opinion) even Indians will show gratitude; in fact I have known many instances of them doing so, and this is one of them. In March, 1886, nearly all the settlers throughout Northern Saskatchewan went down to Qu'Appelle station for seed grain and grub, there being a dearth of both in the country. This was supplied by the government and I was one of the crowd. On our homeward journey we passed through the Touchwood Hills; our ponies were heavily loaded and frequent spells at the steep hills were in order. At one of these we pulled up quite close to some Indian tepees. I noted an Indian scanning both me and my team very closely, shading his eyes with his hands, and jumping up on a waggon box he took one more look, then diving into his tepee, he came running out with a new rabbit skin robe which he threw on my sleigh. Standing up on the box he called out in a loud voice, "Look at this man, he saved my life. Now my new robe will keep him warm in the snow" (and it did). Sure enough, it was our Nut Lake friend, Sos-coo-pi-toon, I think they called him. A great shake hands round followed, and I had to tell my companions the story that night. All our camps were made in the snow, 32 days for me, the round trip being five hundred miles.

To revert to my diary. On proposing to my wife that I could take her and the children to Prince Albert, also our furs and that I would go either scouting or on the transport, she absolutely refused to consider any separation, and said we must all stay together no matter what happened. On scouting round the place a day or two later I found a body of some forty Indians, evidently from Nut Lake, had camped for a night a mile or so south of my house, and then struck southwest in the direction of Batoche. No doubt they were rebels, or going to join the rebel forces. This decided me that it was no longer safe

Contestant at Peterboro'

J. H. Burnham, Ind. Consecutive candidate in the recent Peterborough election. He resigned his seat some time ago as a protest against the Government continuing in office.

While we were preparing for a start, Xavier Batoche called about noon as he was riding past, and we were very glad to see him as he had remained steadily loyal in spite of much pressure being brought on him by Riel and his compatriots. He would not, he said, fight against his misguided countrymen, so had a hiding place in the Pasquia Hills with some friendly Indians. He stayed to dinner and the fare was poor enough, simply bannock, potatoes and black tea, no meat or butter. With his natural French politeness he made things very pleasant and was very much taken with my three fair-haired little girls.

He thought my move was a wise one, and though his large assortment of furs were safely cached at present, he might eventually send them down the Saskatchewan River. I went out with him as he saddled up and after thanking me for my hospitality, handed me what he called a trifle for Madame in a cotton sack, which proved to be some ten pounds of very choice bacon, which was a noble gift considering conditions. Poor Batoche, or Kas-Kak, so styled by the Indians (meaning raven, as he had very black hair) made a good deal of money for trading, but took to drinking heavily, which no doubt shortened his days.

Leaving our pictures hanging on the walls and quite a number of other household goods, including seed potatoes, off we started. The order of travel was myself on horseback well armed with a fourteen shot Winchester and a heavy six shooter, my wife driving a team of ponies in a buckboard with two kiddies, and our girl with the oxen and wagon and two older children, behind which came three head of stock (all we owned at that time). I would ride ahead for a mile or two and then circle the party. We had the usual trouble in crossing some five creeks, which delayed us so that it was well on in the evening when we made Carrot River. And here an old settler, Mr. Chas. Robertson, very kindly took us in for the night.

After an early start next morning, and when we were about halfway to La Corne, in one of my rides ahead I caught sight of three mounted men riding in a southwesterly direction, and after studying them through my field glasses I came to the conclusion they were Riel's men, as I could detect the fine cloth capots with gilt buttons, also gilt crosses sown on their breasts. Their arms were evidently single barrel muzzle loaders, and after a moment's thought I rode to intercept them. On meeting them I gave the usual Cree salutation, "Wa-chea, Wa-chea," to which they cheerfully replied (the mother tongue of nearly all the French Metis was Cree). We all got off our horses, took our fire bags and settled down for a smoke and a talk. As I had thought, Riel had sent them down, their errand being to corral all the government cattle, but in this they had failed as the Indians very wisely hid them, so they were returning empty handed. I asked whether they were bothering settlers. "No," was the reply, "we passed close to Neewa-pi-tis (Goodfellow) house and saw the children playing at the door." They were evidently not at all enthusiastic over the prospect of war. All they wanted was their rights from

Government Roads Are Effecting Freight Economies

Diversions Planned In West For Decreasing Amount Of Hauling Distance.

Edmonton.—In the co-ordination of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian National Railway in Alberta several important diversions are planned in the western division of the system for the purpose of decreasing the amount of hauling distance, particularly as applied to coal and other commodities. It is announced by officials here that diversions already proposed will eliminate several bridges, particularly the long trestle bridge, one of the longest on the system, over the Battle River, near Norway, south of Camrose. This renders necessary the construction of several miles of new track. They will also eliminate the Grand Trunk Depot at Camrose, at which point the Canadian National terminal will serve all purposes of the Canadian National system.

The new line from New Norway to Battle, on the Battle River subdivision south of Camrose, is contemplated in order to shorten the mileage between Brébeau, the coal centre west of Red Deer, and Wainwright, on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, 127 miles east of Edmonton.

The new changes are expected to save about 36 miles in the hauling of coal from the Brazeau fields.

Instead of transporting coal from these centres via Warder, which was the condition in the past, consignments will be brought via Mirror along the new line, thus eliminating the Battle River bridge.

Death of Western Editor

M. R. Jennings, of Edmonton Journal, Succumbs to Heart Disease.

Victoria, B.C.—Milton Robbins Jennings, aged 47, managing director and editor of the Edmonton Journal, died here from an acute attack of heart disease. Mr. Jennings came to Victoria several weeks ago in an effort to regain his health. He was a native of Warsaw, New York.

Mr. Jennings was taken ill in the late autumn and went for treatment to Portland, where his wife was awaiting him. About a month ago he was well on the way to recovery and came to Victoria where he and Mrs. Jennings had planned to stay until he had regained sufficient strength to return to his active duties.

Vancouver.—Extensive damage to timber limits on the British Columbia coast was caused by the windstorms at the end of last month according to reports of timber cruisers to Vancouver logging firms. It is estimated that 30,000,000 feet of timber is down on the limits of Brooks, Scanlon and O'Brien, near Powell River.

Fruit Growers May Balk

Move to Have United Farmers of B.C. Join With Prairie Organization.

Vancouver.—Norman Lambert, secretary of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, Winnipeg; C. Rice-Jones, general manager of the United Grain Growers, Winnipeg; and J. B. Muselman, secretary, Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association, Regina, will address the annual convention of the United Farmers of British Columbia here this week.

It is understood that one of the important matters to come before the convention will be the position to be taken by the association as regards politics. During the past year all locals have been asked their opinion as to whether the United Farmers should join the Canadian Council of Agriculture. If the association falls in line with the prairie organization, it will mean that British Columbia farmers will be adopting a free trade platform and this will not by any means be satisfactory to the fruit growers of this province, who are strong protectionists. It is believed that the mission of Messrs. Lambert and Musselman is to persuade British Columbia farmers to join the council
